Dear Colin

Literally about to depart to the USA for a few weeks for a holiday and wanted to give you some information about the new Doctor's image.

As you probably know, Peter Davison and I have been discussing various ideas for several months now, namely as follows:-

That the basic costume would be a period cricket outfit (all the Doctors have reflected Earth's history). I enclose some photos of Peter which we took at a "stock" fitting some time ago. I do feel the Doctor Who shirt with the '?' mark on the lapels is worth hanging onto. Similarly, I am committed to a cricket jersey in terms of Doctor Who annuals and other merchandise.

Anyway, here are the latest thoughts - I'm sure you can vastly improve them ....

Doctor Who shirt, cricket pullover, white cricket shoes, period baggy pants - possibly some colour introduced here eg. stripes? with an optional top ~~hat~~ and hat. One idea we tossed around was a morning suit jacket and collapsible topper.

I shall be returning to the office on 4th March and I wonder if you and I and Peter Davison could have some sort of experimental session on the afternoon of Friday, 6th March (Peter Davison is not available any other time and leaves the country around 11th March).

If you would like to come and see me either on 4th or 5th with any drawings or further thoughts I'd be delighted to see you. Please contact Jane Judge, my secretary, on extension 3667, to arrange a mutually convenient time.

With best wishes

John Nathan-Turner

BRIEF OUTLINE OF PLOT (Information in brackets NOT FOR PUBLICATION)

Heading for Earth, the Tardis materialises on an alien space craft. THE DOCTOR, ADRIC, TEGAN and NYSSA are taken to its commander, the reptilian MONARCH, Leader of the Urbankans.

MONARCH's henchpersons, ENLIGHTENMENT and PERSUASION, explain that they and three billion other Urbankans have left their dead planet to resettle on Earth. Previous visits have established its suitability, now they come for good.

(The quartet are invited to complete their journey to Earth with MONARCH. They are entertained by BIGON (Greek), LIN FUTU (Chinese), VILLAGRA (Mayan) and KURKUTJI (Aborigine), four earthlings captured by the Urbankans on previous visits many thousands of years before.

NYSSA and ADRIC encounter replicate aborigines and greeks while THE DOCTOR and TEGAN watch a 'Recreational' - an ethnic entertainment laid on for MONARCH.

BIGON warns that MONARCH's real intention is to pillage Earth of its silicon to develop still further his advanced technology. He plans to travel faster than the speed of light and thereby go back in time. On the other side of the Big Bang he expects to find himself, a godlike creator! THE DOCTOR and BIGON agree he must be stopped!

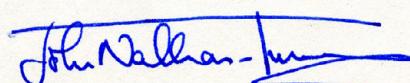

NYSSA and ADRIC learn that the replicates are all androids, so BIGON reveals to THE DOCTOR that he too is made of synthetics and microchips. He and his fellow earthlings have been liberated from the evils of "Flesh Time".

MONARCH so impresses ADRIC with his schemes that the boy agrees to help him on Earth. The sceptical NYSSA is taken away for replication, but is rescued by THE DOCTOR and BIGON who themselves are captured. BIGON is decircuited and NYSSA held hostage again against the good behaviour of the released DOCTOR.

Having convinced ADRIC of MONARCH's real motives, THE DOCTOR plans a revolt. LIN FUTU recircuits BIGON who jams the lesser androids into a perpetual 'Recreational'. THE DOCTOR struggles across space to reach the Tardis, now flown by TEGAN alongside the alien craft, and ADRIC decircuits the threatening ENLIGHTENMENT and PERSUASION.

The Tardis materialises on board the craft and the quartet confront MONARCH. Using the poison the Leader had intended for earthlings, ADRIC reduces MONARCH to the size of a conventional frot. The quartet leave BIGON and the others to head for a new planet and a new life!

This production, as a result of the rather specialised requirements of the script, calls for Chinese artistes to perform a dragon dance. Space restrictions in the studio oblige us to simplify this to 'lion' and 'unicorn' dances; the skills for even these take at least two years to acquire.

We have located a troupe who are able and willing to perform for us and can even supply the props. None are members of British Actors Equity, however we would like to negotiate with them.

The use of this troupe will be for its particular skill only and we shall employ Chinese members of Equity (as available) to undertake walk-on roles. Experience of 'The Chinese Detective' recently revealed a relative shortage of suitable artistes, borne out by the very limited response to our advertisement in 'The Stage' on 12th March.

The representative of this troupe is Master Kong Chiu Tsang, with whom we hope to be able to negotiate a fee of about £500 all inclusive:

Studio 14th April: 2 X Lion Dance 4 Men
2 X Musicians 2 Men

Studio 29th April 2 X Lion/Unicorn 4 Men
2 X Musicians 2 Men

and attend one days rehearsal in the period 20/27th April. We could perhaps offer to arrange transport for the troupe and their props.

I hope that the enclosed information is sufficiently detailed for you to be able to argue our case with British Actors Equity and give us the go-ahead with this scheme.

Terence Dudley

Dear Terry

Thank you so much for your extra scene for
'DOOMSDAY'. And thank you for being so quick!

As you know, I have only been on attachment to 'Doctor Who'. I have now been re-deployed to 'Juliet Bravo' for May through July. For these three months, at least, my position on 'Doctor Who' is being taken by Eric Saward, another of this season's writers. There's an outside chance of my returning to 'Doctor Who' later in the year but, of course, nothing in this world is certain, particularly in the BBC.

Many thanks for your cooperation on 'DOOMSDAY'.

I was talking to someone who had watched the recording of 'Doctor Who' on Tuesday, and was told about a ~~new~~ scene where the Doctor throws a cricket ball in order to reach the TARDIS. As I understand, the ball bounced off the spaceship and when it returned to the Doctor propelled him to the TARDIS. Being a Physics Graduate I immediately noticed an error. When the Doctor flings the ball he would immediately move in the opposite direction (Newton's First Law of Motion). The return of the ball would only speed him up slightly. This is obviously a minor point, but it is school Physics and will probably be noticed by many of the audience, wondering why the Doctor did not move ~~with~~ when he flung the ball.

I thought I should warn you of any future comments.

DOCTOR WHO: OVERRUN

On Thursday, 30th April we had an overrun of seven minutes - we had lost more than seven minutes during our three-day session due to prolonged video-tape line-up.

I have just realised that I did not inform you of an overrun of fifteen minutes on Wednesday 15th April in order to complete scenes in a particular set. We had again lost some time during this previous three-day stand with technical breakdowns.

I feel I should put on paper my appreciation of Bob Hignett's and Dave Chapman's great contribution to the completion of our recent Doctor Who. Due to a badly organised tape to tape transfer, Bob and Dave had a mammoth task in ensuring that the required VT was fed through a monitor and transferred to tape. They were working under extraordinary circumstances and I am most grateful for their contribution beyond the call of duty.
